

Naval Powers Move Toward Compromise

Progress Made in Meeting of "Big Five"—Great Britain Shows Faith—Proposed Voluntary Limitation Agreement—Tonnage Measurement First Question Before Full Conference.

London, Jan. 27 (AP).—As the naval powers moved toward compromise today on two of their most troublesome problems—the physical methods of limiting fleets and Italy's demand for parity with France—Great Britain made a new gesture of faith in the naval conference success by announcing that construction of her two newest cruisers has been cancelled.

The British announcement coincided with a meeting of the "Big Five" in Downing street at which further progress was said to have been made toward a compromise on a tonnage plan designed to settle the perennial argument on this technical phase of naval limitation.

At the same time it was disclosed that serious consideration was being given by several delegations to a proposal that the Italian parity problem be met by a treaty declaration in which all powers would join. This would state that the sovereign right of every nation to build an adequate fleet was fully recognized, but that the signatories voluntarily agree not to exceed a certain construction program between now and 1936.

The twin attack on two of the most difficult of the conference problems, coinciding with the British cruiser cancellation announcement, started the second week of the conference in an atmosphere of smiling confidence. It was emphasized on all hands, however, that neither of the compromise formulas has yet been accepted and that much remained to be done even if these two obstacles should be overcome.

The tonnage measurement plan which was discussed for more than two hours at the Downing street session, had been under study even before the conference began, but the proposal to straighten out the Franco-Italian question apparently developed overnight. This latter idea has not yet been reduced to writing and it is not known whether it will be fully acceptable to Mussolini's government although first it stood in tentative form, the suggestion was that the chief naval powers join in a declaration, perhaps in the preamble of a limitation treaty, saying that the sovereign privilege of possessing a navy of any size could not be abridged except voluntarily. This, in effect, would do away with any fixed ratio understanding such as was laid down in the Washington treaty. Then, in the body of the treaty, each power would stipulate the outside limits on its building needs between now and the conference in 1936 when the whole situation is expected to come under review again in conformity with the agreement reached at Washington.

Longest Meeting. Today's Downing street meeting of the Big Five was the longest yet held. The delegation heads discussed a detailed proposal for the conference program with the tonnage measurement question uppermost.

Announcement of cancellation of work on the British cruisers Surrey and Northumberland was made by the admiralty without explanation. These are the two ships on which Prime Minister MacDonald suspended work shortly before his visit to the United States last year.

The only available British comment was from the spokesman of the British delegation who said the cancellation indicated a very hearty hope that the conference will do something. Work on these ships never had actually been started.

Abolition of battleships was understood to have been eliminated, definitely as a subject for discussion on the agenda of the conference largely because of views held by the American delegation here.

Just before the Americans arrived in London, Premier MacDonald created a stir with his disclosure that Great Britain hoped this most powerful type of war vessel eventually would be eliminated.

It was learned today that considerable discussion of this possibility had taken place since the conference opened but that to all appearances the Americans were adamant against its inclusion as a topic to be considered here. The American view is that at the present time naval opinion would not support so drastic a step.

The "Big Five"—Prime Minister MacDonald, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, Refugio Wakatsuki, Andre Tardieu, and Dime Grandi—found the dockets of their meetings today laden with topics striking at the very heart of the technical questions the conference must solve.

The proposal of Colonel Stimson, who heads the American delegation, that when ship categories are taken up cruisers be considered first, caused much consultation over Sunday. It was indicated that real opposition lay among the delegates who would prefer to discuss battleship limitation before limitation of other types is considered.

Annual Farm Outlook Report

Forecasts More Favorable Market Credit, More Labor at Less Wages, But Warns Against Overproduction.

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP).—The American farmer is advised by the Department of Agriculture that he may expect more favorable marketing credit conditions this year and a somewhat greater supply of labor at slightly lower wages, but is warned against imminent overproduction in several lines.

The department's annual farm outlook report, issued for publication today, forecasts a lessened demand for farm products through the summer and fall, compared with the same seasons of 1929, although an improved domestic market was predicted for the closing weeks of the year.

The forecast for 1930 listed more favorable farm mortgage financing conditions, no immediate change in the price of fertilizers, an unchanged level for farm machinery and less satisfactory production credit conditions than a year ago in most of the south.

Wheat prices were forecast as much the same as those prevailing throughout 1929 unless winter damage should prove severe or the spring acreage is reduced.

Dairymen were advised to cull their herds closely and send more heifers to slaughter in order to avoid a continued increase in dairy herds in 1931 and 1932. The general situation in the dairy industry was said to be "not as bad as would appear from present butter prices."

The report said cantaloupe prices would be lower this year in the early producing sections while a moderate decrease in the acreage of the intermediate and late producing sections was recommended "in order to raise prices to the level of a few years ago."

Apple growers were told that new plantings were justified only where conditions are unusually favorable for high quality production. Hog prices were expected to average at least as high as in 1929 and possibly higher, while reduction of slaughter supplies was indicated, this probably offset by a decreased demand for hog products.

Interfere With Fire Apparatus

Traffic Fails to Pull to Curb to Allow Fire Apparatus on Way to Fire to Pass—Police to Enforce Law.

Every driver of an automobile or other vehicle knows, or should know, that on hearing the approach of fire apparatus answering an alarm of fire, under the state traffic law all traffic is required to pull up to the curb and halt until the fire apparatus passes.

This state law, however, is being violated practically every time the Kingston fire department responds to an alarm of fire. The fire department was called out twice this morning and both times traffic got in the way of the apparatus on the way to the fire.

Under the provisions of the state vehicle law a vehicle must not be so driven as to impede or obstruct the progress of the apparatus of a fire department or any official or employee of a city, town or village in the discharge of his duty at a fire. The driver of a vehicle must not drive through or within the established fire lines or over a line of fire hose.

On the approach of fire apparatus, as evidenced by suitable and continuous warning, or by street signals operated from fire headquarters, visible or audible one to another, indicating the route of the apparatus, the driver of a vehicle must immediately draw up such vehicle as near as practicable to the right hand curb and parallel thereto, and bring it to a standstill and the driver of a street car must immediately stop his car and keep it stationary until the apparatus has passed.

The utter disregard of the above provision by many local automobilists is such that the police department will make arrests hereafter whenever any violation of the provisions is observed.

An Ungallant Knight. New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Today's Daily News said that Dorothy Knapp, beauty, who went on the stage after winning a contest at Atlantic City, was nursing a bruised nose as the result of two punches at the Beaux Arts Costume Ball Friday night. She was a duchess and her assailant a knight. The blows were delivered after an invitation to dance. Miss Knapp withheld the man's name.

White House Denies Charge Against Hoover

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP).—A sternly worded denial came quickly from the White House last night after Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, had charged President Hoover with compiling information on government employees for the purpose of bringing patronage influence to bear against recalcitrant members of congress.

Such phrases as "Democratic propaganda bureau" and "not an item of truth nor basis of fact" were mingled in the reply of the White House, issued through Walter Newton, one of Mr. Hoover's secretaries.

The Democratic statement said that Mr. Hoover had sent cards to all departments "to be filled out by every employee giving a full picture of the history of his employment." This, he said, was "difficult to explain on any non-political hypothesis."

Newton replied that neither he nor the president has "ever heard of the matter until it appeared in the press."

A card index of presidential appointees and other non-civil service employees is kept at the White House as a matter of office routine, he said, and some eight months ago cards were sent out for the purpose of bringing the list up to date. Three hundred cards have been catalogued since that time, he added, and no civil service employee was included.

Shouse's statement suggested that members of congress saw in the new system, which he charged to the president, a purpose of "visiting presidential displeasure" upon appointees "for the sins of their sponsors, such as voting independently of the chief executive's desires."

"Wielding the patronage club is nothing new in the efforts of presidents who have sought to compel congressional obedience," he said, "but in the past, this concerned future patronage, and not interference with men who were already in the jobs and doing their work satisfactorily."

Newton after describing the method of keeping records said in reply that "several weeks ago this same Democratic propaganda bureau launched an attack upon the chief executive which was so unfair as to invite almost condemnation with the result that the public has been free from their assault for several weeks." He added that "this last is just as baseless as were the others."

Special Master in Delaware River Water Diversion

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Supreme Court today appointed Charles N. Burch of Memphis, Tenn., special master to take testimony and make findings in the suit brought by New Jersey to prevent New York state and city from taking water from the Delaware river for use in New York city.

Asserting that New York city had an abundant supply of water and had done nothing since 1856 to prevent wasteful use, New Jersey protested against a withdrawal of about 600,000,000 gallons per day from the Delaware river, as proposed, insisting it would impair the navigability of the river and otherwise inflict great injury to the industries of New Jersey.

New York state and city urged an early adjudication of the controversy, denying that New Jersey had any right to interfere with the proposed withdrawal, or that the withdrawal would harmfully affect the Delaware river.

Former Kaiser 71 Today. Doorn, Holland, Jan. 27 (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm, for more than eleven years in exile, celebrated the 71st anniversary of his birthday quietly today. He attended divine service with his family this morning. During the day the Hohenzollern flag floated on the castle and over the entrance gate. The former monarch read hundreds of telegrams and letters from many admirers while newcomers arrived in profusion.

Still Alarm for Truck Fire. While a large auto truck of Morris Kaplan, North Front street furniture dealer, was being cranked at the garage at 112 Main street this morning about 8 o'clock, it backfired and someone seeing the blaze sent a still alarm to the fire department. Witty chemical and the pumper responded and the fire was quickly extinguished without damage of any account to the truck.

Five Days for Murtha. Only one arrest was made in Kingston over the week-end, that of Edward Murtha of 114 Tremper avenue, who was picked up at an early hour this morning charged with public intoxication. The police found him lying in a heap of snow. Unable to pay a fine of $5 he was committed to jail for five days by Judge Culliton in police court.

Burned to Death in Bunkhouse. Dalton, Mass., Jan. 27 (AP).—George Porter, 55, and Charles Curley, 38, teamsters at the W. E. Ward lumber camp, were burned to death today in a fire which destroyed a bunkhouse. C. F. Williams, another employee, was severely burned about the hands in attempting to rescue them.

Rescue Mother and Baby. Syracuse, Jan. 27 (AP).—A baby less than an hour old and her mother, Mrs. Henry La Lone, were rescued from their burning home today by two students in the school of medicine, Syracuse University.

Find Wreckage Of Eielson Plane

Part of The Mystery of the Disappearance of Eielson and Borland November 9 Solved.

Seattle, Jan. 27 (AP).—Half the mystery of the disappearance November 9 of Carl Den Eielson and Earl Borland was solved today with discovery of their wrecked plane in an icy lagoon 30 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia. The bodies of the two aviators were not found in the wreckage and the fact kept alive a bare hope that they may still be alive.

The note of optimism was extremely faint, however, as experienced fliers said they believed the plane struck with such force as to kill the aviators and throw them from the ship. It was pointed out that snow might have concealed the bodies from pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gilliam, who found the wreck Saturday.

Crosson and Gilliam took off again yesterday from the fur trading ship Nanuk, rebound at North Cape, for the scene of the wreck. Eielson and Borland were attempting a night from Alaska to the Nanuk when they crashed. They had removed one load of passengers and furs and were returning for a second.

With Crosson and Gilliam were a representative of the Russian Trading Company and a sailor from the Nanuk, owned by the Svenson Trading Company. Dog teams preceded the plane and will join in a search for the missing fliers.

Crosson, first to sight the Eielson plane, signalled to Gilliam and the two fliers brought their machines down near the wreck.

The condition of the plane, Crosson said, indicated that both its occupants were killed in the landing, but he and Gilliam were unable in the short time available to find any trace of the bodies.

One wing of the Eielson-Borland plane was crumpled in landing, while the motor was torn out of the craft and was found 100 feet from the fuselage. The tail was broken.

Provisions in the plane were untouched, a circumstance which apparently confirmed the belief that Borland and Eielson were killed.

Woman and Girl Are Burned When Stove Blows Up

Mrs. Charles Steinmiller Started Fire in Stove—Water Pipes Were Frozen and Stove Exploded in Adams Street Residence.

Mrs. Charles Steinmiller of 25 Adams street and Carrie Tiano, a young girl of Glasco, were burned this morning about 8:23 o'clock when a kitchen stove in the Tiano apartments exploded. Carrie and her young brother attend school at St. Mary's, and have rooms at 25 Adams street. Across the hall are the Steinmiller apartments.

This morning Mrs. Steinmiller started a fire in the combination gas and coal stove in the "Tiano kitchen." During the night the water pipes had frozen solid and suddenly the stove exploded. So great was the force of the explosion that the stove lids knocked holes in the ceiling and all of the glass in the windows in the room were blown out.

Mrs. Steinmiller and the girl were burned by steam, but the boy escaped injuries. Dr. O'Connor who was called dressed the wounds.

The fire damage was trifling. The fire department responded to a still alarm of fire.

Dr. J. A. Decker Is Dead at 79

For Over Fifty Years a Resident and Practicing Physician of the Town of Esopus.

Dr. John A. Decker, for over fifty years a resident and practicing physician of the town of Esopus, died Sunday at his home in Port Ewen after a short illness. Had Dr. Decker lived until June 5 he would have been 80 years old. Born at Kerhonkson he attended the local schools and Fort Edward Institute and later studied medicine at Ann Arbor, Michigan. After his graduation from college he took up the practice of his profession at Ulster Park, where for over thirty years he continued his profession and then moved to Port Ewen, where he has resided for over twenty years. Dr. Decker was a physician of the old school who believed that the consideration of his patients came first and until very recently he was a familiar figure at all hours of the day or night traveling over the countryside to attend to the necessities of his patients. He enjoyed a wide practice and as long as his health permitted he was never known to turn down a call for assistance no matter what hour of the day or night it might be or how severe the weather condition.

For many years he had been health officer of the town of Esopus and held that position at the time of his death. He was also school physician of the town. In 1896 and 1897 he represented his town in the board of supervisors.

Formerly he was a charter member of Gardfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., and the Rebekah Lodge at Ulster Park. He was also a member of the Port Ewen Reformed Church.

Dr. Decker had been twice married. His first wife was Rebecca Norris, daughter of Albert M. Norris of Ulster Park, and two children were born to them, Albert Norris and Naomi Belle. Mrs. Decker died April 1, 1883, and the two children died of diphtheria in 1885. He married for his second wife in 1884 Mrs. Jane (Perrine) Jones, daughter of James H. Perrine of Rifton, and they had one son, McDonald.

Surviving is one son, Donald Decker, of Port Ewen and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Burklin of Poughkeepsie, Pa., and Mrs. John W. Pluckiger of this city.

Funeral will be private but friends may view the remains on Tuesday between the hours of 2 and 4 and 7 and 8 p. m. Interment will be in Pleasant View Cemetery at Ulster Park.

Wind Up Scout Campaign Tonight

The extra meeting called for tonight by the executive committee of the Boy Scout campaign, to be held at the Governor Clinton at 9 o'clock, according to reports of those who have been working Saturday, will be a booster one in the interests of the boys of the county.

When the reports are given it is hoped by the council that the required goal of $11,000 will have been reached.

Morton Finch, who is heading Division 3, was out this morning and called on his captains. Mr. Finch says: "The Boy Scout movement deserves the support of every thinking citizen of the entire county."

Harry Edson, who has charge of Division 2, has been to every meeting during the campaign. Mr. Edson not only devoted most of his time to his particular part of the drive in the city, but made trips into the county for the purpose of helping to line up other communities to a final success.

Max L. Roben, who is at the head of Division A, was called to New York this morning, but before leaving he made sure that his full crew of workers were going to be on hand tonight to make a good report.

John Mehan, chairman of the Kingston district, says: "Kingston is proud of its boys and our efforts must not cease until the full amount is reached."

President Van Voorhis reports that Saugerties has gone beyond expectations already.

Chairman V. T. Pine of New Paltz sends in his report, which is up to par, with some more to come in.

The county as a whole, according to statements sent to headquarters, is very enthusiastic and with the indications shown during the entire campaign, the finances of the council will be such that the work can be carried on much more successfully through the year.

In order to accomplish all this the entire force of workers will have to devote a good deal of time during the day and evening to this task and then come out and report tonight.

7-Inch Ice in Rondout Creek

The ice in the Rondout creek off the property of John A. Fischer on Abell street is now 7 inches thick, according to Mr. Fischer. As soon as the ice reaches 9 to 10 inches in thickness he expects to start the work of harvesting a crop.

The zero weather of the past few nights has lightened the ice both in the creek and the Hudson river. Today the ferry Transport had some difficulty in making her trips on account of the ice and was assisted by the tug Rob.

The Hudson River Steamboat Company vessels are still running between Kingston and New York. The steamer Poughkeepsie came into the Rondout creek on Sunday and was expected to leave for New York later this afternoon.

C. J. Gross Overcome at Phoenicia Fire

Sunday afternoon fire was discovered in the garage under the apartments of William C. Meister at Phoenicia. When the firemen arrived they found a stubborn blaze which had communicated to the woodwork between the partitions and underneath a metal ceiling. Efforts to reach the blaze from the garage was without effect and it was necessary to go to the upper floors and pump water down between the partitions.

The building, of frame construction, was once used as a garage and had been remodeled, with living quarters on the second floor and a two-car garage underneath. The fire started from some unknown cause in the garage under the living quarters. In the garage was an automobile which was rolled out and saved. The building was very badly damaged and the firemen working in near zero temperature had difficult work in gaining control of the fire.

Mr. Meister, who occupied the apartments, conducts the drug store in the village.

Conrad J. Gross, manager of the Kingston Buick Company in this city, was overcome by smoke and was treated at the office of his father, Dr. John C. Gross, who resides nearby.

The building which was damaged by fire is located just off the main street along the creek back of the Meister drug store.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs, colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Finds Easy Way To Relieve Rheumatism

Port Ewen Man Uses Dr. French's Nu-Erb—"Backache And Rheumatic Pains Disappear," He Says.

Differing from many so-called rheumatic remedies, Dr. French's Nu-Erb, goes about its work in a perfectly natural way, cleansing the system of impurities, eliminating acids and poisonous waste matter. This medicine has overcome cases of rheumatism and neuritis in many instances where everything else had failed, for example take the splendid experience of Mr. Edward Bishop, Port Ewen, N.Y., who is engineer of the steamer Horneles.

MR. BISHOP.

"I was troubled with a severe case of rheumatism for more than two years. During that time I was never free from agonizing pains through my limbs, joints and muscles. They would become stiff and swollen and at times I could hardly raise my arm above my head. My kidneys were in a weakened condition, I suffered from backache and I was forced to arise many times each night. I was troubled with constipation and my entire system was generally run-down.

"After trying everything else, I have at last found a medicine that will actually give relief. Dr. French's Nu-Erb has put an end to those aches and pains for the first time. I can now move about freely and the stiffness and swelling have all disappeared. The pains have left my back, my kidneys are apparently in first rate condition and my bowels are acting regularly every day. I am also feeling much stronger and have more energy than I have had for several years."

McBride Drug Store, 812 Wall Street, is headquarters in Kingston for Dr. French's Nu-Erb. Go see the Nu-Erb man now making his headquarters there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

Boarding House Burns at Olivera

A large summer boarding house owned by Charles J. Andrews of Olivera was almost totally destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. Fire was discovered in the boarding house at practically the same time as a fire was discovered in the latter house in the village of Phoenix.

The Andrews house was a large one, with accommodations for from 100 to 150 guests and was closed up for the winter, except a few rooms which were being used by the caretaker, a son of the owner. It is supposed the fire started from an over-heated chimney which got fire to work in the attic.

Word was sent to Pine Hill and a motor apparatus from that village responded. By good work the fire was able to confine the fire to the interior of the house, but when the fire was extinguished the interior was very badly burned and practically all that remains are the outside walls.

Wife Gets Judgment

for Dollar a Year

Nunenburg, England.—Pleading that she cannot afford to pay the request, a woman was given judgment for a dollar a year by a local court.

A woman applied for a maintenance order against her husband because she was out of work. She said that he was making $8 a week, although not employed for full time.

The bench ordered the husband to pay his wife 2 cents a week, 8 cents a month or a little less than a dollar a year.

Pertussin For Coughs

PRESCRIBED by physicians because it is free from harmful drugs—and relieves coughs in a natural way.

Civilization Wiping Out Eskimo People

Ottawa.—Like the dodo bird and the passenger pigeon, Canada's only poly Eskimos are gradually being wiped off the earth by civilization, according to officials here.

There are about 6,000 of them dwelling in the northern vastnesses of Canada, and all are especially susceptible to tuberculosis, grip, whooping cough, measles, chickenpox and other diseases introduced to the Arctic by the white man, but propagated there by the unsanitary conditions under which the natives live.

With the long range rifles supplied by the white traders, the Eskimos transform a natural wild life paradise into a land of famine.

One thing in the Eskimo's favor in his fight with new conditions is the fact that generally speaking he has no inherited craving for liquor.

Government officials hope early preventive measures may save this simple but adaptable race from extinction.

Elephants' Feet Used as Champagne Tubs

Paris.—French specialists in creating novelties have gone one better than the Chicago packers who were finally able to pack everything but the pig's squeal.

They have imagined the making of champagne tubs out of elephants' feet. The huge pedal appendage of the pachyderm is tanned, left with all its hair, and the ivory-like toes are polished with oil. The inside is hollowed out and fitted with a silver tub to hold the ice into which the champagne is buried.

There are somewhat smaller tubs made from the tanned feet of the rhinoceros. Hereafter when an elephant was killed only his tusks were taken, unless the native guides were hungry, but there is now an entirely new market which may make elephant hunting profitable.

No "National Holiday"

In one sense we may call such holidays as Christmas, New Year's day, Labor day, Independence day and Thanksgiving national holidays, as they are observed in all of the states of this nation. Strictly speaking, however, there are no national holidays because only the separate state governments can establish legal holidays.

ON REARING CHILDREN from CRIB TO COLLEGE

Have you ever turned a holiday afternoon into a costume party with very little work? Men's handkerchiefs will make pilgrims' caps and kerchiefs, wide white cuffs and collars of white paper and a wide belt of dark material will turn an American business man into something resembling a pilgrim. The children will love this dressing up and can probably add color with an Indian split or two.

Interesting fathers in the school is one of the finest things a Parent-Teacher association can do. They do not accept new-fangled notions readily, usually insisting loudly that there ought to be less nonsense and more of the old-fashioned in the curriculum. It is advisable to have two or three programs a year that will have a strong pulling power for fathers.

The cry-baby is the product of too much petting, usually of too much maternal affection. Over-sensitive and easily hurt, he cannot take his part in a group. In order to cure the cry-baby, there is just one thing to do: cut the apron strings!

Tomato juice, canned by itself or drained from canned tomatoes, is an acceptable substitute for orange juice even for the young baby—and tomato cocktails are growing in favor for older folks! The juice comes in glass—plain or seasoned—and is the most beautiful cocktail yet devised.

It is the experience of many mothers that fits of disobedience, temper, tantrums, and general irritability mark the onset of physical disturbance. Parents must therefore be very cautious in administering punishment at such times because it would be not only useless but unjust.

Conflict in the adolescent is unavoidable. It cannot be escaped. While the conflict is going on, certain typical character traits of adolescence, such as instability, moodiness, rebelliousness, extreme happiness and extreme unhappiness are bound to appear. Nothing can be done to prevent their coming to the surface. They will disappear when the conflict is solved. Conflict in the adolescent is over when there is, first, a more or less complete severance of the home ties and, second, a full acceptance of adult responsibilities with all that implies in the way of caring for oneself and one's dependents.

There's no place like home if it is interesting. To children one of the most fascinating places in the whole house is the kitchen. Let them come into it at an early age. Not only cooking but accuracy, orderliness and helpfulness may be learned here.

Belts Being Placed at the Normal Waistline

The problem of child begins at the waistline. It is evident that the waistline is being shifted about from the high point of normalcy to the low hip line we all know, but it is the concentration of costume around the waistline that makes it so important.

Suzanne Talbot tightens the waistline at its normal location by pinning close-fitting leather belts around it for sports and practical wear, and by washes and carved crystal belts for other daytime costumes and for evening.

She shows hand-knitted sweaters that have, heretofore, hid their career at the hip line. The belt that circles the waistline divides these new sweaters almost in the middle, giving an effect of silhouette that suggests the hourglass. Skirts that are worn beneath such sweaters are not flared, but they have fullness, usually in a few unpressed plaits, placed at the back, and the hem of the skirt also dips slightly at the back so that it seems longer.

White and Black Flecks on Warm Copper Shade

One of the popular tweed coats showing white and black flecks on a warm copper shade and made with youthful pockets and belt.

Gold Less Durable

It has been found that gold coins do not have the wearing qualities of the silver ones. A silver coin can be exchanged about 3,200,000 times before the image on it is worn away, while a gold coin will survive only 2,000,000 changes of ownership.

RAPIDS REHEARSE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Tonight at 7:30 in the Kingston High School auditorium, the cast that is to stage Rapid Hose Company's annual minstrel there on February 3 and 4, will hold a rehearsal. Every member of the cast is asked to be present as important instructions will be given.

Director Edward V. Barton has the show well under way now and from all indications it will be one of the best minstrels ever staged in this city, surpassing even the splendid program that the Rapids put on in Kingston High School last year.

Y. M. C. A. SCOUTS ENJOY OUTDOOR SPORTS

A number of outings, in addition to their regular weekly meetings, have been enjoyed by the members of the Y. M. C. A. Boy Scout troop which is led by Otto Christensen, scoutmaster. Mr. Christensen is an accomplished skater and has succeeded in interesting the Scouts in outdoor sports to a great degree. Although the "Y" Scouts are out for all the fun possible they are not neglecting to keep well posted on the various phases of scouting so that their title of Champion Boy Scouts of Ulster county may be successfully defended whenever they are called upon to contest.

Why Orchid is High Priced

The orchid, most expensive of florists' blooms, owes its high price in part to the great length of time it takes to produce flowers. It takes seven years from the planting of the seed until the blossoms are matured, but once matured the blossoms last longer than any other cut flower. If kept in an ice box between times, orchids may be worn every day for a week or more, provided the flower petals are not touched with the hands.

ALL ONE FAMILY.

Gen. Jan Smuts has ended his brief visit to this country and sailed for Europe. Before he left he said many kind things about America and Americans, praising the "kindness, heartiness, human spontaneity" of those with whom he came in contact here.

Gen. Smuts was a leader in the World War and has been a leader in the work for peace that has been going on ever since. He helped found the League of Nations and presided over it for a year. He knows a good deal about European and world affairs, about war and its consequences. Anything he says on these subjects deserves attention. In his farewell to his friends in America, he said: "The unity of the human family is the ultimate meaning of the great war and is what I have been trying to hammer in, in my message to America. We are all one family. If one suffers, all the others suffer, too."

We were many different families until recent years when transportation and communication developed so swiftly and brought us all so close together. Now we are one, and it is foolish for any nation to go on acting and thinking as if it could live unto itself alone and disregard the rest of the family. But there still are far too many black sheep in the "family" to assure us of an ideal family life.

BUS SAFETY.

The number of motor bus accidents this winter has been appalling. Especially lamentable has been the number of school bus accidents. Scores of children have been killed on the way to or from school. This is too big a price to pay for progress. A convenient, modern form of transportation is in danger of losing its popularity, whether for grown-ups or children.

What is the trouble? Mostly human carelessness, as usual. The bus idea is all right. The human factor, as represented in the driver or mechanic or purchasing agent, is not dependable enough. This is a peril which can never be entirely eliminated, but can be reduced to a minimum by justifying all reasonable persons in continuing to use busses. It seems to be mainly a question of selecting drivers and busses. There seems to be a good deal of carelessness in this field. Those responsible for school policies and management usually surround the children with every possible safeguard while they are at school, but are sometimes less careful about their safety while going and coming.

At best, the children are subjected to many perilous hazards from motor transportation, whether riding or walking. There should be the best possible vehicles and the best possible drivers when school busses are used. Some critics are now demanding two men in charge of every bus, one to do the driving and the other to look after the safety of the passengers while embarking, and disembarking, crossing railroads, etc. We may have to come to that.

Life insurance day of Thrift Week, just passed, brought out some interesting facts about insurance in this country. In the first place, life insurance has become a recognized form of investment. One-half the population of the United States is insured. Although less than 3 percent of the nation's aggregate income is invested annually in life insurance premiums, life insurance itself represents 77 percent of the estates that are left. During the past 50 years national wealth has grown from 40 billions to 400 billions, bank deposits have grown from two billions to more than 50 billions, and life insurance policies have increased from 700,000 to more than 100,000,000 in number and from two billions to over 100 billions in money. Insurance of all sorts—life, employment and annuity—is interesting, more and more individuals who wish to provide for their old age, their children's education, their families' protection in emergency, and so on. It appears to be a wholesome development in national thrift.

Count Karolyi, former premier of Hungary, who warned the world of the impending war before it broke in 1914, is warning now against the danger of another conflagration. He tells Americans that the great menace in Europe now is Fascism. He fears Italian Fascism because it represents such intense nationalism as started the former catastrophe. Also because, as represented by Mussolini, it is so relentless and uncompromising, and so much international dynamite is entrusted to the keeping of one man, Karolyi may be over-disposed to sound alarms. His own experience naturally makes him uneasy and suspicious. But he is probably right in his main contention at least.

Writing of the new head of the "wet bloc" in Congress, Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, former Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin says: "An spokesman of the wets Mr. Beck could be relied on to set forth with force and dignity the philosophy of the opposition to Federal prohibition as opposed to the original American conception of the proper line of demarcation between Federal and State jurisdictions. Beyond this is the still more fundamental question of the proper limitations of governmental regulation of personal conduct. These questions are independent of the further practical one of the enforceability of prohibition of the Volstead brand."

 DIGESTIVE TRACT CAUSES ACNE.

I try to talk about acne or 'pimples' at least once a year, because it is an embarrassing condition just at a time when the individual is most interested in his or her appearance.

Acne starts at about the age of puberty just when some glands are ceasing to work in the body and others are just getting started; the oil glands and the hair follicles are becoming more active.

Now although there is an organism thought to be the direct cause, that the digestive system enters into the causation is now generally admitted.

Research workers find that in practically every case some little defect in the digestive tract can be found. These defects are over activity of the stomach juice; the food staying too long in the stomach or intestine; the walls of the stomach or intestine often too weak to move their contents along rapidly enough.

Often the stomach or intestine is "dropped," placed too low in the abdomen. Now you can see what the effect upon the blood is going to be when there is this laziness in the movement of the stomach and intestine. The blood is going to be laden with wastes, and of a consistency that will not nourish the tissues and clear away the broken down or used tissues.

This material, the oil, in the oil glands of the skin, gets so thick that it doesn't pour out on the skin to make the skin soft and pliable.

This oil gets infected and you have acne or pimples. Now most individuals can eat everything and anything and because their glands are working right, or because their stomach or intestine move contents along properly or for other reasons, they haven't the slightest trouble with the skin.

Other individuals have to watch the diet carefully, cutting down on tea, coffee and alcohol, and avoiding pork, veal, fats, cheese, and some kinds of fish.

There are hundreds of preparations used to apply externally, containing mercury, sulphur, arsenic, zinc or other drugs. The X-ray treatment has given brilliant results in many cases.

The thought then is to keep the abdominal muscles tight by exercise, perhaps an abdominal belt in some cases, cutting down the foods mentioned above, the use of a little alkali like baking soda, besides the medical or other treatment prescribed by your physician.

Don't get discouraged. Most cases can be greatly helped, and the digestive tract is the part that needs watchful care.

A QUESTION of HONOR
 by Ruth Cross

It was a cold, stormy night, and the wind was howling through the trees. A lone figure stood in the doorway of a small, rustic cabin, looking out into the darkness. The figure was a woman, her face pale and her hands clasped in prayer. She was waiting for someone who had not yet come.

Chapter 25
A DESPERATE WOMAN

When the door had closed behind her niece, Mrs. Wilmut rose, crossed over to the table and stood looking about her curiously, striking the knuckles of one plump, white hand abstractedly against the table edge.

Her eyes fell on the litter of papers, which Anne had made no attempt to put in order—knowing how men detect having their belongings touched. She lifted one and then another, glancing at them absently, without any particular interest. But suddenly she raised an envelope close to her eyes.

Finding it unsealed, she took it out and put up her glasses to read it—ordinarily she would not have been guilty of such an act, but she felt that the desperation of the present crisis justified any means that might come to hand. She perused the letter hastily but with care. It was addressed: "Messrs. Blackwell and Cooper, 519 Exchange Building, San Francisco, California."

It was the letter which Glenn had written about the big gold strike; in the rush of things it had been left unsealed.

Mrs. Wilmut thrust the sheet back into the envelope and shoved it under the other papers. Then she stood considering tensely, her lips tightly compressed, her knuckles still tapping against the table edge. Finally she sat down in front of the table, drew pen and ink swiftly toward her and wrote steadily, her brows puckered with thought.

Out in the kitchen, Anne had discovered that Delphine had sustained no injury more serious than a rather severe bruise on her forehead. Delphine in her zeal for ferreting out Shob's choice treasures from their hiding places, had pulled down an old rubber boot with a variegated assortment of relics in it. When she put in her hand and pulled out a snake skin, she had screamed and fallen to the floor.

Anne bathed the bruised hand with witch hazel, comforted her as best she could, and went back into the living room. When she entered, her aunt was just moving away from the couch, on one end of which lay Anne's old sweater. "Poor Delphine," she said, laughing, "she almost pulled the whole kitchen down on her self."

"I didn't come up here to talk about Delphine—nor kitchen," Mrs. Wilmut informed her tersely. "Now put on your hat, if you have one, and come on home with me. Leon has been more than generous, but he certainly can't be expected to stand for any further nonsense."

Anne gazed at her incredulously. "Auntie, can't you understand?" she said gently. "I'm not coming. And even if I were not married already—there is nothing on earth that could induce me to let Leon Morse's wife, after what he has done—or tried to do!"

"What has he done?" "You must know—that he and Mr. Douglas have set these mountaineers on to try to dynamite Mr. Glenn's—my husband's—reservoir."

"What of it?" "My dear child," Mrs. Wilmut was ardently trying hard now to be patient, "you don't suppose for a moment that there's any fortune in the same class with Leon's that hasn't got something as bad—or a good deal worse—than that behind it, do you? After all, what's a little irrigation project more or less in comparison with a great transcontinental railway which will be of benefit to the entire country? You see, my dear, a man like Leon Morse gets the habit of looking at things in the large."

"Yes, I suppose so," Anne murmured. "His perspective has widened to such an extent that he doesn't in the least mind—or even see perhaps—that he's stepping on a lot of mere average human beings in going after what he wants!"

"Good heavens!" Mrs. Wilmut regarded her with genuine horror and consternation. "You talk like an I. W. W. or an innocent right out of a convent!"

Anne looked back at her despairingly. "I guess it's no use, Aunt Emily," she said. "We can't seem to understand one another."

The older woman pulled herself stiffly to her feet, picked up her stole and wrapped it firmly about her plump shoulders. "Well, perhaps we shall—a little later—when you get some of these highfaluting ideas out of your head and come to your senses."

"I am sorry, Auntie, I don't know how to tell you how sorry I am," Anne said in a distressed tone, as her guest moved majestically past her towards the door.

"A lot of good that does! But—we'll see, we'll see. You may be glad to come crawling back to Leon on your hands and knees yet!"

"Nothing, I'm sure, could please him better," Anne commented thoughtfully. "You must let me go part the way back with you, though, auntie—I don't like to think of your going through the woods alone."

"I came alone; I dare say I can go back the same way—unless—" On the lowest step, she turned and faced her niece again. "Anne, you said last night that at least I'm always been honest with you. I'm not going to pretend that this is not a heavy blow for me—this morning when I knew first that you had gone—"

She paused to choose her words, and Anne, seeing her face in the strong afternoon sunlight, realized that it looked haggard from worry—10 years older almost. She took an involuntary step nearer.

"It was hard," Mrs. Wilmut went on slowly, "to see the hopes and ambitions of a lifetime shattered by the single rash act of a thoughtless, selfish girl, but—after all, I am an old woman. It doesn't matter so much; no doubt I shall get on somehow—I don't require a great deal."

"But for you—your whole future is at stake. In a few weeks, or at most a few months, this mad fancy will pass. Love lasts—maybe for the length of the honeymoon, maybe not so long; marriage is a matter of a lifetime." She raised her face to Anne's. "For the first time in their long relationship, she was pleading instead of commanding. 'Go get your hat, my dear, and come on back with me to Leon like a good, sensible girl!'"

Anne turned very white. Her half lifted hand fell to her side. "You must know how hard you are making it for me, Aunt Emily," she said in a very low tone. "You don't understand—I guess you can't. I love the man I have married with all my heart—I've been trying to make you understand that ever since you came. In the second place, the thought of Leon—after what has happened—is so unthinkable, so repulsive—"

She broke off despairingly at sight of the change which had come abruptly over her aunt's face. The grandmotherly mouth was compressed into a hard, narrow line. The keen little dark eyes, which a moment before had looked almost soft and appealing, gleamed and sparkled like cut steel.

She turned sharply and started picking her way cautiously down the steep little path. "Well, we shall see, we shall see—" Her last words came back harshly to Anne, who stood miserably watching her from the front porch. A few moments later, she was lost to view among the trees.

After a while, Anne turned and went dejectedly back into the house. All the joy had gone out of the day. She forgot Delphine and the unfinished house-cleaning. She had sold her right to happiness long ago, she told herself—long before she had any standards by which to gauge its worth. She was, in reality, as she had told Glenn, worthless. Perhaps she would only bring trouble and sorrow on him too—she could stand anything but that—

Worth-While Thought
 It is easy for anyone to give up, to say that the buffeting waves of this mundane experience are too much for him, and to live a miserable and complaining life. This is low thinking. Just as a man is endowed with a spirit that can soar above the animal, so this spirit can bring him down to the animal level. Let us think high thoughts, cultivate high emotions and indulge in high pleasures.—Chicago Daily News.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

IN EVERY SPRING SONG ONE FINDS BOLEROS AND PEPLUMS.

New York—Among the newest notes to be commented on in connection with a discussion of coming fashions, is the importance of the bolero. One realizes immediately that it is perfectly atune with the idea of the higher waistline and instrumental in creating a high line without really changing the body line of the frock. The lace dress, or a dress of interchangeable type, plus a bolero, becomes immediately doubled in value since the sleeves may be in one with the bolero, the dress beneath being low and sans sleeves. Such a frock is an ideal Sunday night variety whether in black or some of the colors in which one may choose lace.

(Copyright, 1930, by Fairchild.)

The Sunday-night dress of black lace has a detachable bolero with long sleeves and is finished underneath as a dinner gown.

Boleros are by no means confined to the separate jacket type. There are numerous cloth frocks fashioned with a bolero, the line of which just out from the body. Novel treatments of its edge are, of course, important, battlement and saw edges being with scallops and other means of decoration, of importance. The bolero is frequently used on frocks which mold the bodice and hip lines and flares at a low level.

Of almost equal importance to the bolero is the peplum, another useful detail in breaking the straightness of the line to the same degree. As fashion at one time insisted on straight lines, it is now deemed advisable to drape them. Both flaring peplums and flaring skirt flounces are winning an enviable position on the spring program. The circular flounce has been responsible for the lack of resistance women have shown in relinquishing the flattering uneven hem for the circular flounce which, while being regular, has a pleasing fluid line.

Big Business In the Old Days

(By C. A. Winchell)

Shokan, Jan. 25.—An old newspaper clipping containing a passage from an address made by Col. Zadoc Pratt at the Greene County Fair many years ago furnishes an interesting commentary upon the economic importance of the tanning industry in this part of the country during the middle part of the past century.

Colonel Pratt was a contemporary of Nathan W. Watson and General Henry A. Samson in the business of what some might term the "exploitation" of the natural resources of the Town of Olive, at a period in our history when tanneries and sawmills dotted the banks of every sizeable stream in Ulster and neighboring counties of the Catskill section. The colony was at one time associated with General Pratt at Oliveville, and with General Samson at the same place; he was the father of Col. George W. Pratt, heroic commander of the old Twentieth Regiment, and it was after that one of Mr. Pratt's sons, the late Zadoc P. Pratt, was named.

Back in the mountains of Olive, Shandaken and Denning may still be seen the rotted trunks of thousands of hemlock trees, many of them veritable giants of the forest, from which the bark was stripped to feed the insatiable maws of grinders in the mills of Watson Hollow (originally called Watsonville), Samsonville, Oliveville and still other "villages" of this outstanding section of the tanning industry. Even Shokan, from the days when it was known as Caserville, down to the time when the waterworks project claimed it as one of the pawns in a game played for the good of the majority, had its tannery, variously owned and operated, by the Ludwigs, Hoyts and others.

Some idea of the scope of this vast tanning industry may be gained from Colonel Pratt's address, which, although it treats of that capitalist's operations alone, is nevertheless illustrative of the immensity and importance of the business as a whole. Said Colonel Pratt:

"And now I will show you the advantage those dreary hemlocks have been to the farmers of our mountain town. Since I first engaged in farming, it has been my lot to employ over fifteen thousand years of other men's labor; an army of thirty thousand men have I employed, and I have paid those men for their labor alone, over two million, five hundred thousand dollars. I have cleared over ten thousand acres of land, used over two hundred thousand cords of hemlock bark, and paid over half a million of dollars for it. Used and worn out five hundred horses, one thousand yoke of oxen. Used two hundred thousand bushels of oats, one hundred and twenty thousand tons of hay; thirty thousand barrels of beef and pork, nearly one hundred thousand barrels of flour and potatoes without number or measure. I have tanned one million, two hundred and fifty sides of leather; my usual disbursement is over five thousand dollars per month, and I have used in my business here over ten millions. Every laborer received his money, yes, every man his penny. In peace, and to the credit of this community he it said, that I never had a side of leather stolen and was never chosen defendant in law on account of my business transactions, during my residence among you."

"The great object of my living," continued Colonel Pratt, "is to be useful. Live with your neighbor and not on him. Allow no ladies and gentlemen, to conclude by congratulating you upon the rich blessings of health, power and prosperity which surround you. May succeeding generations do as much as you have done toward national wealth and industry, which are the safeguards to our independence."

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

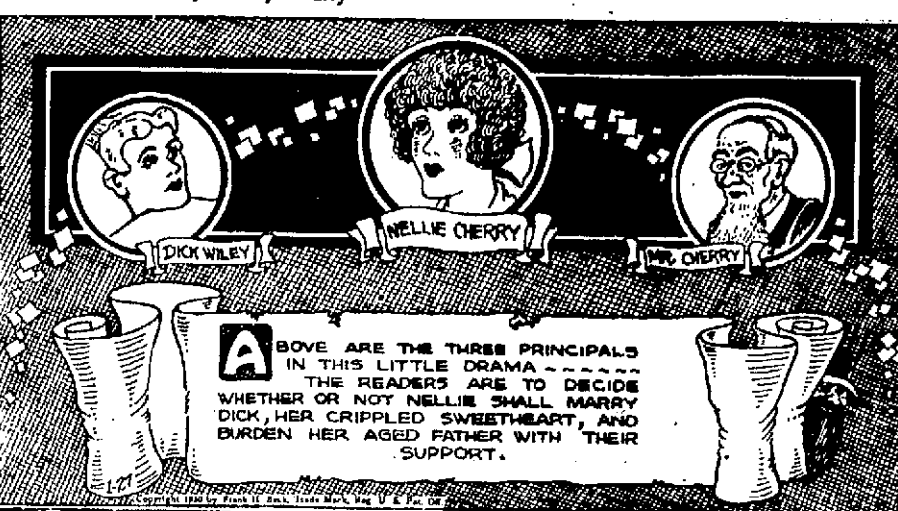

Blanche Sweet, who plays the part of the night club hostess in "The Woman Racket," latest all-talking drama of night life, will appear as Paul Whiteman's guest star when Paul Whiteman's Old Orchestra broadcasts its weekly program of dance music, Tuesday evening, January 28, from 9 to 10 o'clock through Station KHX, Los Angeles, and a nationwide net-work of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

The musical culture of the Near East and the Middle West—from points half round the world—will meet in joint recital during the Alwater Kent Concert Hour of February 2 when Genevieve Irene Rowe, soprano, of Wooster, Ohio, winner of the Third National Radio Audition of the Alwater Kent Foundation, and Armand Tokatyan, tenor, of Alexandria, Egypt, now with the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, are the stars. The Alwater Kent Concert Orchestra, directed by Josef Pasternack, will contribute orchestral numbers and accompaniments for the singers.

Nathaniel Shilkret, newly-appointed director of the Mobilio Concert Orchestra, will offer as his first program on Wednesday, January 29, a collection of his own favorite selections by famous composers. Nathaniel Shilkret needs no introduction to radio audiences. As a musical director for the Victor Talking Machine Company, Shilkret produced his first radio program just five years ago this month, and during the few intervening years he has climbed meteorically into a stellar place in the radio firmament.

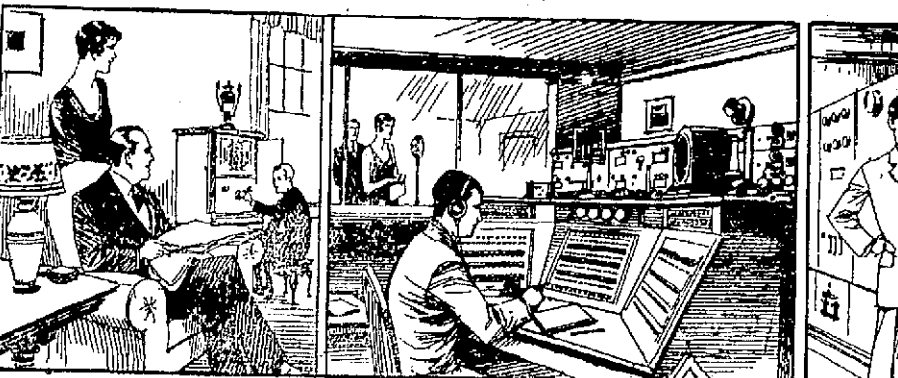

A darling exploit of Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys will be related Tuesday evening when the Socynland sketch entitled "Twenty-

"UNCLE SAM AT YOUR SERVICE"

"By Authority of the Federal Radio Commission"

(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

The United States was the first country to have radio broadcasting; the first license being issued late in 1921. Experimental broadcasts (as early as 1914) were, mainly, phonograph programs. Listeners were few, of course, but the Department of Commerce foresaw that the public could be interested only by improved programs. A new form of license was created, requiring a high standard of equipment and programs. This was the foundation laid for the present unequalled American broadcasting system. Congress formed the Federal Radio Commission as a governing body of wireless communications on February 22, 1927. The Commission licenses all stations and by allocating specific wave lengths, attempts to give our ten million receiving sets clearer and better reception. A station owner, dissatisfied with his other band, may appeal to the 5 Commissioners who sit as a court for that purpose.

During the year 1929, 6,927 applications were passed upon. The Commission has the cooperative assistance of the Radio Division of the Department of Commerce. That Division inspects stations licensed by the Commission, and examines and licenses radio operators of all classes. The law limits a broadcasting license to three months, and all other types of radio, not to exceed one year. The Commission cannot censor programs; but it can refuse license to a station whose programs are not deemed to be for the best public interest. Television, moving and still pictures by radio, though in the experimental stage, are presenting different "air problems," which the Commission is already at work on, that we may enjoy the widest possible public service from this rapidly perfecting invention.

Tomorrow—Monitoring Broadcasting Stations.

Triple Action ends coughs FAST

Home from school
with a bad cough

—Back in school the next day

"Will I ever forget the fright I had when Jane came home from school coughing, coughing—one cough right after the other. I put her to bed immediately and gave her a teaspoonful of Smith Brothers Cough Syrup every hour. That night my little Jane slept peacefully. In the morning she smiled again—well as ever. I will be grateful all my life to Smith Brothers Cough Syrup."—Mrs. A. Robeson.

Smith Brothers Triple Action Cough Syrup works so efficiently because 1. It soothes, 2. Is mildly laxative, 3. Clears air passages. Children like the flavor.

BRITON'S FAITH COSTS $33,000

Confiding Foreigner Is Victim of "Con" Men in Stock Deals.

Chicago.—David W. Tinkham of 8 Prince of Wales road, Bournemouth, England, acquired a great faith in mankind as he accumulated $100,000 in the importing business, and then he and his wife came to America, retaining that abiding conviction. But after their first visit to the detective bureau they decided to return to merry England, where honesty still prevails.

The Tinkhams, sadder and wiser and poorer by $33,000, told Sgt. Roy Van Herik and William Murphy how they turned their money over to a financial wizard and a decent appearing young chap from Canada. They had implicit confidence that the aforesaid gentlemen were to meet them in Chicago and hand over winnings Mr. Tinkham thought he made on the stock exchanges of El Paso, Texas, and Reno, Nev.

Meet Lonely Canadian. Mr. Tinkham is a distinguished gentleman in the city, with gout and mustache, and Mrs. Tinkham is tall, stately and dignified. He was born in this country, but has lived in England for forty years, and when he sold his business last fall he brought his wife to Boston. Then they went to Florida and California and then to El Paso where Mr. Tinkham made the acquaintance of Walter Spencer of Calgary, who was homelike for Christmas in Canada.

The Tinkhams were sorry for his loneliness. Then Spencer thought he recognized in another stranger a friend of one of his acquaintances. Judge Baker of New York. The second stranger repulsed him at first, asking him if he were a reporter, and then welcomed him, explaining he was availing reporters.

Spencer induced the stranger, who said he was James W. Barker, an employee of the New York stock exchange, to talk about himself, which Barker reluctantly but modestly did. He produced a newspaper clipping that contained his photograph and told how he made money for the poor by giving stock market information.

The Old, Old Trick. Barker sent Spencer to the "stock exchange" with a check for $1,000 and Spencer came back with $5,000 in cash. Spencer was then sent back with a check for $75,000 and came back with a bundle of money supposed to be $235,000, but right behind him was the manager of the "stock exchange," who doubted the genuineness of the $75,000 check and took back the $235,000 until he could be shown that Barker could have paid his loss if there had been a loss. But Barker didn't want the New York stock exchange to know he was speculating, so it was arranged that Spencer should get $30,000, Barker $15,000, and if Tinkham furnished $30,000 he would share in the winnings.

Tinkham sent to England for $7,000, and the three moved over to Reno, where they collected the package of $235,000, but it was in escrow till they could convince the "stock exchange" they could have paid losses. That necessitated Barker's going to Canada to get real money and then they were to meet Tinkham here.

"That story is as old as Chicago," Lieut. William Crut told the trusting Tinkhams. "Look through the ruggies' gallery and see if you can find pictures of Spencer and Barker."

The Reason Is, Autos Kill 'Em, Not Maim 'Em

Des Moines, Iowa.—Automobiles may make business for the doctors and the undertakers but to the manufacturer of artificial limbs they are only a mode of transportation.

J. G. Madigan, Des Moines, who has been manufacturing artificial limbs, arms and braces for 43 years, is the authority for the statement.

"My factory has turned out less than ten artificial limbs for automobile accident victims in the last two years," Madigan said.

"Sun Power" Engine Has 1,788 Mirrors

Los Angeles.—On the outskirts of this city is one of the world's queerest engines. It is run by "sun power," 1,788 mirrors reflecting the heat of the sun on a huge boiler which holds water. The heat of the sun turns the water to steam, creating power for operation of the engine. This system has been in operation since 1922.

His Wish for Snapshot Costs Life of Friend

Chicago.—Frank Jansa, amateur photographer, wanted a good ice scene snapshot and got it, but it cost the life of his friend, Henry Prussa. Prussa, with Heinz Timm, another friend, posed on the topmost point of a Lake Michigan iceberg. Just as Jansa was ready to snap the shutter Prussa slipped into a crevice and slid into the lake. As he struggled in the water Jansa took his picture. Then both Jansa and Timm tried to rescue Prussa, but failed.

The Atwater Kent Mfg. Company has never had any shares of its stock on the market.

It owns outright its business and its manufacturing plant. It has been in business for more than twenty-seven increasingly profitable years, has always done business on its own capital and has never borrowed a dollar.

All its resources and experience are concentrated upon just one thing—the making and selling of fine radio instruments. Production in its thirty-two acre factory is scientifically controlled, so that Atwater Kent dealers always have enough radio on hand to meet the public demand, and are never overstocked. Its inventory is never excessive.

Single-minded devotion to its one job—the production of the finest radio that can be built—has put the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company today in the strongest position it has ever held. Strongest in the excellence of its product—Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio. Strongest in the confidence of the public. Strongest in stability, which is the keystone of permanence in any business.

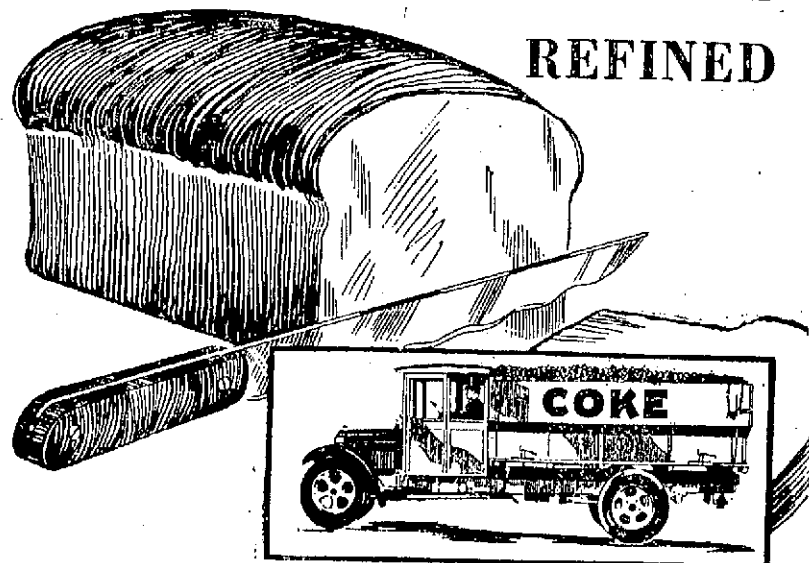

A. Atwater Kent, President.

THIS is a facsimile of an advertisement published in newspapers November 1, 1929. Since then the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company has moved steadily forward. Public demand for its radio is so great that for many weeks the factory was unable to keep up with orders, although production has been materially increased. Its collections are absolutely normal—showing the responsibility of the business men who sell Atwater Kent Radio.

More than ever before, the purchaser of radio is concerned with the stability of the manufacturer who makes his set. The Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company has been stabilized for twenty-eight years.

A. Atwater Kent, President.

STARS AND EYES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

If I had never looked at stars, I never would have seen a star. And had not looked in women's eyes I would not know what women are. I pushed some prize I might have found.

No doubt, by gazing at the ground, And yet I think the man more wise Who looks at stars, and women's eyes.

The great have often galloped on And left me standing in the road. But when the very great were gone The night came down, the heavens showed.

"They saw their silver, I saw stars, They had their money, I had Mars, Or if my luck were starless skies Within the inn were women's eyes."

Ah, well, I fear when I get through I shall not have so much of gold, A coin or two, a suit or two, And Peter may incline to scold. The world, I haven't any doubt, Has many things to be about, And yet I think a fellow wise Who looks at stars, and women's eyes.

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

SHE WHO "DOTH PROTEST TOO MUCH"

HEARING a woman overpraising a really remarkable child, so doing him an unquestionable injury, set my mind off on the thought of how many women spoil something that is good "protesting too much."

With regard to the child, of course, this is a mistake about which volumes might be said.

It is rather the general idea that I want to bring out here of how the woman who "doth protest too much" kills her own point every time.

Just as in nothing over your child it is far more effective—provided there is indeed something worth talking about—to say what he did or said, and let others judge of its significance, than to crowd the idea in a sea of words like "marvelous," "wonderful," "gorgeous," "brilliant," "incomparable," so with anything that you want to accredit or praise, it is best to give facts.

Justly or unjustly, the man who wants to sell you "a bill of goods" is the last one to whom you would go for an unbiased opinion in regard to it. And when you are preternaturally about anything, no matter how sincere in your belief you may be, you give the impression of having an idea to sell. And that only provides an obstacle to be overcome by the object of your praise.

If restraint is good in all things, it is doubly good in speaking of things or people we like and whom we want others to like.

"There is no necessity for proving the excellence of light."

Dear Editor:

EVERY so often I run into one of these boastful couples who have been married 40 years and "never had a cross word between them."

I think people like that do more to discourage matrimony than any other one cause.

Who would want to be married 40 years and never speak his mind?

Watching an Englishman today, I wondered if I could be happy carrying my handkerchief in my sleeve. I'm afraid I'd be picking it off the floor as often as the girls do. Never will I get over my surprise at seeing a girl with a four-inch square of cambric trying to mop up all the dust in sight.

Jovial Taft Fights Cheerfully To Regain His Health In South

By L. A. BROPHY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

DASHINGTON (AP)—With the same cheerful attitude that has ruled his life, William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States, is fighting to regain a working portion of the abundant health that carried him through a public career without parallel.

Mr. Taft was perceptibly ill when he entered a hospital here for treatment before going to Asheville, N. C., where he now is making apparent progress.

He was well enough, however, to walk to the receiving room of the hospital, and he said to the attendant, with a chuckle:

"Well, young lady, have you a room for me?"

Mr. Taft has been a part of Washington life so long that the capital's concern over his recent acute illness was almost a tangible thing. He was just 33 when he came here in 1890 as solicitor general of the United States. In the years up to and including his tenure of the White House he was a permanent and semi-permanent Washingtonian, until in 1921 he moved to the capital as chief justice of the United States, under appointment of President Harding.

It has only been in recent years that illness has laid a detaining hand on the Taft activity. The chief justice was forced to give up his almost daily walk to the supreme court.

Pedestrians who had come to know and venerate the man striding along with a smile of companionable ship that encompassed the great, the near great and the unobtrusive, felt his absence keenly.

When the chief justice was too ill to journey at all to court, the capital felt another loss, for then it was denied an amiable glimpse of him riding up Pennsylvania avenue in the morning and down in the late afternoon.

The Taft chuckle and the Taft cheer make friends and admirers a legion hard to count.

It was as a walker in Washington it is two miles from the Taft home to the supreme court—that his humaneness best became publicly known. He never became impatient with the curious who spoke to him, and he never failed to salute a friend.

William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States, striding in the manner that has made him one of Washington's most famous pedestrians.

Salvatore Cortesi, Rome correspondent for The Associated Press, walking down a Washington street, was halted by Mr. Taft with: "Hello, there! How are you?"

which suggests the pertinent query. What has become of those fancy fringed mittens, big as a boxing glove, that were worn by teamsters and old men in the days of yesterday? Those were coverings calculated to keep a fellow's hands warm in sub-zero weather, though they would scarcely be of use in case the carburetor needed adjusting.

AT THE THEATRES

Today.
Kingston: Sunny Side Up.
Enough cannot be said about this show. Janet Gaynor surely can sing, and so can Charles Farrell. The story is made for them. El Brendel furnishes the funny vein, and a comedy team, new to the screen, make hay while the sun shines. One scene, "Turn On the Heat," in which an Eskimo village becomes a desert oasis is extremely clever.
Don't miss it.
Broadway: "His First Command." William Boyd takes to riding a "hoss" and making fun of the army. If you like Boyd you'll like this.
Orpheum: "Say It With Songs." Al Jolson and Little Davey Lee of "Sonny Boy" fame do it all over again.

Naval Powers Compromise

Gardner, Bland, and Massigli for the French.

It was emphasized afterwards that the Americans had no intention of imposing their will on the other delegations. They, however, remained confident that the plan of Colonel Stimson would be accepted. Previously Mr. MacDonald and Colonel Stimson had conferred at Chequers Court, Colonel Stimson driving from his own country home, but there was no disclosure as to the subject of their conversation.

Consider Japanese Demand.

Meanwhile it was learned that while the Japanese have been pretty much in the background during the developments of the first week, their demand for seven cruisers to every ten retained by Great Britain and the United States compared to six to ten under the Washington battle-ship ratio, has by no means been lost sight of. The Americans especially have been giving careful study to the matter and it would cause no surprise to them if there were some developments on that phase of the negotiations within the next few days.

Colonel Stimson, who is in constant communication with President Hoover, appeared much impressed with the desirability of coming to grips with the long debated cruiser problem as soon as possible.

The Big Five meeting this morning did not finally complete the agenda but did decide that the question of tonnage measurements be taken up first at the next session of the full conference.

It also was decided to let the other subjects come up in the alphabetical order of the countries proposing them. This means that France will be able to place her compromise "Global" tonnage proposal before the conference before Italy can present the somewhat different plan she favors.

During the afternoon it was announced that because of the length of the morning sessions, the British and Japanese conference scheduled for today had been abandoned.

Effect of Snake Venom

Probed by Scientists

It has been stated on apparently good authority that snake venom will not affect cold-blooded animals, such as snakes, frogs, toads, lizards and fish. Systematic observation shows that this is not the case. Toads, which are very tenacious of life, have been known to survive three days after having been bitten by puff-adders or by cobras, but in the end they succumb. Frogs often die almost instantly after having been bitten. Again, it has been said that the venoms of two deadly snakes of the same species do not affect each other. Though this holds good in some cases, however, it is not true of all. Puff-adders appear to be immune from one another's poison. On the other hand, puff-adders that have been bitten by cobras, mambas, boom-slanks, and other venomous South African snakes occasionally die, but not always. In one case a puff-adder which was injected with enough cobra poison to kill six men survived.

Renovation

A renovationist is one who looks for the improvement of mankind through supernatural rather than natural influences, by spiritual renovation instead of natural progress.

JR. O. U. A. M. SOCIAL WAS DECIDED SUCCESS.

Mechanics' Hall on Henry street was filled to capacity Saturday evening at the first of which is hoped will be a series of social get-together parties sponsored by Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Jr. O. U. A. M., for members and their friends. Starting at 8:30, a very interesting vaudeville program was pleasingly presented with Herbert Myers acting as master of ceremonies. Miss Selma Lehr gave a very pleasing piano and vocal selection which was heartily applauded. Next came a dance specially presented by Miss Mickey McGlynn in her own inimitable way, was also enthusiastically applauded. A group of xylophone solos, ably presented by Arthur Floyd, came in for much favorable applause. One of the best numbers of the evening was a waltz clog dance given by Mickey McGlynn and Roger Keough. It was snappy, graceful and clever. In response to the continued applause this pair presented a very entertaining encore. A clever and difficult buck and wing dance was given by Frank Kearney, who received much applause and gave an original number as an encore. Roger Keough also gave an excellent exhibition of acrobatic dancing entitled "Upside Down", which was lustily applauded. The program came to a close with Miss Lehr presenting a group of piano selections which came in for a very generous amount of applause.

The committee was then called on and took the opportunity to spring a welcome address on the members and their friends. Those who heard the address through the din, which sounded like Niagara Falls in action, say it was a model speech. After the entertainment and speeches dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock to the exceedingly musical program furnished by Paul Zucca and his singing orchestra. Dainty refreshments, consisting of chicken sandwiches, pickles, coffee and cake were served. The committee in charge desire to thank all who helped to make this initial effort a decided success.

When the train of thought is evil, stop the train.

ACTIVITIES AT RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The annual series of family suppers and study hours will begin at the Rondout Presbyterian Church on February 6, with a supper served at 6 o'clock under the supervision of Mrs. Hubert and Mrs. Comstock. Following the supper a study hour will be held. A discussion group will consider "Dark Spots", an up-to-date book on present day conditions. Dr. and Mrs. Charles G. Ellis will present Smyth's "How We Got Our Bible", with side lights on lost books of the Bible, the Apocrypha, the romance of the English Bible and a comparison of Catholic and Protestant versions. The young folks will have a fascinating book of stories and strange people called "Jewels the Giant Dropped".

The subject for the Thursday evening prayer service will be "Jewels from the Psalms".

The convention of Presbyterian men from the Metropolitan area will be held in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York on January 28. The Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis and A. S. Staples will be the delegates from the church.

The Westminster Guild will serve a cafeteria supper in the chapel of the church on Wednesday evening and a fine menu has been prepared.

Only 61 students of the University of Georgia's 1,661 are from other states.

Magnates Take Din Out Of Tin Pan Alley

By RICHARD MASSOCK.

(AP Feature Service Writer.)
New York (AP)—Tin Pan Alley is no more.

Wall street is now in the hot tune business and popular music has gone
Fifth avenue.

To this extent have the hoop-a-doop marketers forgotten their old inferiority complex.

The real Tin Pan Alley that gave the name to legend was a mere by-word even before song writers began to go to Hollywood.

It sprang up in the sentimental 1900's in a block on West Twenty-eighth street, and got its name from the raucous din ground out of its second and third floor windows. On these floors were the piano pounders who tried out new tunes.

Another stunt of the early plug-gers was to slog through megaphones, a la Rudy Vallee, out of those very same windows.

A couple of decades later the music factories had been dispersed.
Broadway took a big share and became a sort of melody lane. Now the newest music company is situated in tony Fifth avenue.

A man who has had a lot to do with this is E. C. Mills, president of the newly organized Radio Music Company in which are merged the interests of a dozen corporations, including popular and classical music publishers and producers of vaudeville, talking pictures and radio entertainers, along with manufacturers of recording and broadcasting equipment.

When Mills became the so-called czar of popular music in 1919 he found the industry, as he said, "licking the boots of other people."

Boys were "hired to go around crowds and hum or whistle the newest tunes. The humble publishers
"bribed orchestras and vaudeville acts to play their music."

Mills set out to change their attitude.

Born in Denver 19 years ago, he was reared in San Antonio, Tex.

He had been trainmaster and executive of the Isthmian Canal Commission, as well as an organizer of circuses, carnivals, auto races, aviation meets, vaudeville and movie enterprises.

New York, which harbored a half-dozen music publishers. E. C. Mills (inset) is czar of the popular music industry.

His handling of an actors' strike in the southwest resulted in a call to New York in 1916 to aid in the organization of the Vaudeville Managers' Protective Association and the actors' club, the National Vaudeville Artists.

Three years later he was called upon to organize and head the Music Publishers' Protective Association and to reorganize and head the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Now the popular music industry has the top hand, and orchestras have to obtain permission to play its tunes. By means of the radio, a publisher can reach an audience of more than 30,000,000 people in one night.
It would have taken two years to get a song across to such an audience by the old methods.

His company intends to make it easier for the young composer to get an audience by having an unaffiliated committee of judges pass on every composition offered to it.

Deadly Diseases
The four "great killers of mankind,"

Health service, are heart disease, kidney disease, cancer and pneumonia.

Eben, "but it ain't so good when a man knows a lot o' things he doesn't tell."

Charged with Laziness

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

That persistent feeling of tiredness—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that declines so many elections in business—are all usually due to an acid system. Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits; causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal that saps our strength and vitality, taxes our nerves and pulls us down physically and mentally.

Magnesia Oxide, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, corrects acidity. In the right way, upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxide generates nascent, or active, oxygen. This "live" oxygen stimu-lates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxide from McBride Drug Stores or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for five days and see how much better

Spinny's Five Beats Roamers

Tony Gentile's Roamers, who had long camped on the trail of the Spinny Radio Five, issuing battle challenges, emerged from their campaign against that quintet Saturday night at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, on the short end of a 46-37 score.

A large turnout of fans witnessed the game in which the Spinny outfit proved superior from start to finish, outdoing their opponents in offensive and defensive tactics. Wes Hyatt and "Blag" Van Etten, with 18 and 16 points respectively were leading scorers of the Spinny's. Raichle tossed the ball through the hoop for 10 of the Roamers' points.

In the preliminary game the Irish-Americans defeated the Port Ewen Men's Club by the close score of 22-21.

BOUTS THIS WEEK ON NATIONAL SCHEDULE

New York, Jan. 27 (A).—A heavy weight battle at Chicago with Primo Carnera, mammoth Italian, as a featured performer, and a lightweight duel at New York between Al Singer and Stanislaus Loyza of Ohio, provide little fans with their outstanding attractions this week.

Carnera makes his second American start against Elmer Rhoux, Canadian heavyweight champion, at the Chicago stadium Friday night. Singer and Loyza will meet in Madison Square Garden the same night. Both bouts are scheduled for ten rounds.

Other bouts on the national schedule include: Tonight—At Philadelphia, Billy Jones, Philadelphia negro, vs. Pat Latzo, Scranton, light heavyweight, ten rounds. At New York, St. Nicholas Arena, Izzy Grove, New York, vs. Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., middleweight, ten rounds.

Wednesday—At Cincinnati, Rudy Graham, Rhea, vs. Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, lightweight, ten rounds. Friday—At Chicago, Stadium, Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., negro, vs. Klug Tut, Minneapolis, lightweight, ten rounds.

LETO FIGHTS TUESDAY AT ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

Tony Loto of Tampa, Fla., formerly of the Edderville boxing camp, is slated to meet Harry Forbes, southern featherweight, Tuesday night at St. Petersburg, Fla. The match is expected to be a big drawing card as both boys are well known as real two-fisted fighters in the sunny southland. Loto is out to avenge a decision that Forbes scored over him three years ago and says that he will extend himself to the limit. Forbes is considered a tough proposition. He holds wins over some of Florida's best including Jimmy Watts.

NEW GOLF BALL IS AID TO DUFFER

Bigger, Lighter and Better for Average Player.

Most of the howling that you hear about the new standard golf ball comes from the golfers whom the new ball will assist to play better golf than they ever thought of playing before. If they can only forget they are using a new ball, it is bigger and lighter and better for the average golfer and the plain or 110-variety of duffer.

The experts and the champions are the ones who will have to do some calculating and brush up on a few shots, and learn a bit more about play in the wind before their scores sink down to par, and below.

Briefly, the new standard ball, already on the market, but not to become official for us in U. S. G. A. championships until January 1, 1931, is 1.68 inches in diameter and 1.35 ounces in weight, where the present standard is 1.62 in both particulars.

Football fans should feel thankful for the break that came between Capt. John McEwan, coach, and the University of Oregon, according to O. M. Gibbs of the Baltimore Sun.

It brought a new angle to light that few football fans suspected existed in present-day gridiron activities.

The reasons for McEwan's loss of favor at Oregon are not important. His explanation of the only trouble he ever had as coach is:

It will be remembered that he claimed the only difficulty he experienced was when he and the president of the university disagreed upon which substitute to send into the game at critical moments.

The idea of the president of a university sitting on the bench and arguing with the coach over the running of the team adds a touch of color to the fall pastime.

This assertion of McEwan's, if true, indicates that it may not be long before college presidents, urged on by the financial and other aspects, will be taking over more and more the duties of the coach.

Western league umpires may travel from city to city in automobiles next season. President Dale Gear will ask club owners to purchase automobiles for officials' use in an attempt to cut down league expenses.

The baseball fans of the Pacific coast are assured a real fight next summer because the league has put up $15,000 to fight for.

The season in 1930 will be split. If one club wins both the first half and the second half it will receive $7,500 to be divided among the players. The second place club will receive $3,500; third, $2,500, and the fourth place, $1,500.

If one club wins the first and another the second they'll split it out for $10,000—the winner, getting $6,000. The third place club would then receive $3,000 and the fourth place $2,000.

Orral Martin, captain of Purdue's track and cross-country teams, has a most unusual victory record in collegiate competition. Martin never has been defeated in a conference championship track meet, winning five championships in four meets. He holds the conference indoor records for both the mile and half-mile, and in addition won both the mile and the half-mile in the outdoor championships last spring.

National league managers are interested chiefly in the problem of preventing the Chicago Cubs from repeating their 1929 pennant victory.

Manager Joe McCarthy and owner William Wrigley have made a serious effort to strengthen any weak spots in the Cubs' lineup and have done more to improve their club, since the close of the 1929 season, than any rival owner has done to better his.

Purchase of Lynn Nelson and Malcolm Moss, leading pitchers of the American association, added efficiency to the Cubs' already strong pitching staff and the purchase of Lester Bell from Boston, is expected to fill satisfactorily the weakest position on the Cub team—third base.

Professional Golfers Association has raised the dues to $70 a year, which will make available an annual income of $100,000. The association proposes to employ a business administrator, three district organizers and clerical help in order to build up the organization.

The University of Texas and the University of Missouri have agreed to a four-year series of football games beginning in 1931.

The first game would be played at Austin, Texas, October 3, 1931, and the second at Columbia, Mo., October 10, 1932.

The 1932 Olympic games are two years and more away but already there are indications that the world's sports show will play to the biggest crowds in its history and attract the greatest number of athletes.

When it was announced the Olympic games would go to Los Angeles other countries gloomily predicted the great distance would bar many from competing. But officials already have word that the entries will outnumber those in any previous meet. The crowds are assured, for California turns out for track and field more enthusiastically than does any other part of the world.

Sage Philosophizes

"The time spent in gambling," said El Ro, the sage of Chinatown, "is more valuable than the money that may pass. Gambling should be only for those of leisure who have so much wealth that they do not need to win."

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The current iron-man of the major leagues, chunky Joey Sewell, is well on the way to busting one of the greatest of all baseball endurance records.

Cleveland's infield star will start the 1930 season with a string of 1091 consecutively played games played behind him. He is still 216 games short of the world's record of 1307 games played in a row by Everett Scott while shortstop for Boston and later the New York Yankees, over a period from June 20, 1916 to May 5, 1925.

Sewall started his streak on Sept. 13, 1922, after having been benched the day before by Manager Tris Speaker over some point of disagreement. But for that lapse and his absence from one other game in the same season, 1922, Sewall might now be the record-holder. Those two games are the only ones Sewall has missed in a stretch of nine seasons in which he has played altogether in 1382 contests.

At present, Sewall is the only major leaguer outside of Scott to pass the 1,000 mark in consecutive games. Joey must play the entire 1930 campaign and nearly half of 1931 before having an opportunity to crack Scott's mark but the prospects appear strongly in his favor.

Sewall is only 31 now. In his prime. The shift that moved him from short to third last season should lengthen his baseball life, for the wear and tear on the legs is not so severe in the latter position.

Sewall aside from his remarkable durability, also has the distinction of being the hardest man to strike out in either major league. He set up an amazing record for avoiding the well-worn path from home plate back to the bench. As evidence that his eye is still sharp as ever in judging curves or fast ones, Sewall equalled his own world's record last season by being a strike-out victim only four times.

In the last five seasons, the Alabama boy has whiffed only 30 times altogether, an average of six per season. He fanned four times in 1925, six in 1926, seven in 1927, nine in 1928 and four in 1929, playing every game.

The National League record in this line of performance was made in 1922 by Charley Hollocher, Chicago shortstop, with only five strikeouts in 152 games.

Bob Martin, who has just been granted a monthly pension of $100 by the Federal government on the extraordinary ground that he was made punch-drunk by three score fights while in the Army, emerged from the war with much brighter prospects of becoming heavy weight champion than Gene Tunney.

Tunney won an A. E. F. decision from Martin in Paris in 1919 but Bob was considered better equipped for professional work by no less eagle-eyed an observer than Jimmy Bronson.

Bronson could have handled either one, after the war, but he picked Martin, who later developed a brain tumor and was forced to quit the ring. Subsequently Bronson was persuaded to cast his fortunes with Tunney and was Gene's chief second in both fights with Jack Dempsey. Bronson's presence of mind, in the famous seventh round at Chicago, was considered to have had much to do with Tunney's success in weathering the storm.

Tower of Turquoise

A peculiar virtue assigned to turquoise during the Middle Ages was its power to divert to itself the misadventures of any fall suffered by the wearer. Because of this useful quality, it was highly prized by horsemen who, if they did not themselves possess a fine turquoise, would hire one as an amulet to wear in the chase tournament.

Again and Again Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

... the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency... join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

He tried to "get away"... but they caught him in the act. And yet his filthy habit is no more disgusting than the bestial custom of the workman who rolls cigars with dirty fingers and spits on the ends!

Why punish the one, yet tolerate the vile practice of the other? Smoke Certified Cremo and protect yourself against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar your physician has in mind when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said, "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Withdraws Suit Against Willard

The suit brought by Dr. John C. Pearson of Liberty, against the W. E. Willard & Company, Inc., and its executive vice president, H. E. King, alleging that $36,000 of the doctor's securities had been misappropriated and that securities of nominal value had been delivered for part of the doctor's list and the balance, or approximately $21,000, of the securities totally unaccounted for, has been withdrawn, and Dr. Pearson has written a letter to the concern explaining why he had brought the suit and why he had withdrawn it.

Dr. Pearson's letter follows:

January 15, 1930.
W. E. Willard & Company, Inc.,
Mr. W. E. Willard,
Mr. Harold E. King,
25 West 43rd street,
New York city.

Dear Sirs:
I regret very much the charges which have been made against you in the action of the New York Supreme Court, which I instituted last month, as well as the publicity given the charges in a number of newspapers.

I now find that all of the securities delivered to you or to your agents had been accounted for in full before the Supreme Court action was commenced, and I am now satisfied that no other securities were delivered to you or to any other agent or employee of W. E. Willard and Company, Inc.

I believe that you have heard that I suffered a very severe automobile accident last August, in which I was seriously injured. Thereafter and shortly before the Court action was started, two former employees of Willard & Company, Richard E. Weinberg and William P. Knudsen, came to my home and informed me, among other things, that your company and your officers had been in bad financial condition, and so I erroneously suspected Mr. King of having taken other securities missing from my vault. As to Mr. Willard, I have met him but once, at his Middletown office, and he has not accompanied me to my bank or safe deposit vault, at any time.

From what I have been able to learn, I am satisfied that the statements made to me by those former employees, are false and untrue and any other of my securities that may be missing I am now satisfied did not come into your hands, and I retract any and all claims that you or any of your employees had anything whatever to do with any securities which may be missing.

As to the Trust, in view of the desire expressed by the trustees of the June Gracie Pearson Trust to resign and to be relieved of the burden of managing it, I have asked one of the Middletown Banks, to act as substituted trustee. Inasmuch as I live near Middletown, I think a bank located there and one which has been familiar with my investments and affairs, will do very well, as trustee. The bank seems reluctant to serve unless the securities making up the trust fund are legal investments for trust funds, and therefore I hereby request you, if the bank as substituted trustee so wishes, to sell the securities now in the trust fund, for the sum of $5,750 and to either reinvest the proceeds in the Bank direct, or if they prefer, to turn over to the Bank said sum, so that it may make its own re-investments.

I have received all of the dividend and interest payments on the securities in the trust, including the checks which the trustees sent me this month, and if any other income payments become due under the trust before the same is transferred, I presume that the checks will be sent to me as usual. I have also received regularly the dividend and interest checks on the other securities which I purchased through your company.

I sincerely trust that in view of all of the conditions, you will accept this apology for the trouble and inconvenience which has resulted from my hasty action.

Very truly yours,

J. C. PEARSON.

SUSPICIOUS DEATH OF CHIEF WITNESS AGAINST 102

Oklahoma City, Jan. 27 (AP).—Circumstances surrounding the death of the government's principal witness against 102 officials and residents of Pottawatomie county, on the eve of their trial on charges of participating in a giant conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, led today to an investigation by Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney.

Marion Fuller, former chief of police of Earlsboro, Okla., died here Saturday night. He had admitted participation in the alleged "rum rebellion." St. Lewis said, and furnished information on which the government expected to base its case.

Fuller died in an Oklahoma City hospital, his death certificate describing his fatal malady as a liver infection. Members of Fuller's family, the district attorney said, had voiced suspicions regarding his death, which St. Lewis declined to divulge.

Fuller was charged in the indictment with being a "reflector" for the alleged conspirators, who, the government contends, organized to control the manufacture, transportation and distribution of liquor in Pottawatomie county.

The attendance contest at the Y's Men's meeting is causing quite some interest among the members and a fine increase in percentage of attendance is noticeable. There are still a few weeks left before it will be definitely decided who are the victors.

President Watts and his executive committee have inaugurated a new system for Hi-Y. A member who is absent three meetings in succession will be dropped from the rolls and thus eliminated from the good times which the Hi-Y Club enjoys.

The first dance for Hi-Y members will be held at the Y's Men's camp at Lake Glenclere. This dance will be for Hi-Y members and their girl friends only. A fine group has already signified intentions of being present.
